Dear Lizzie,

Following our conversation at the end of last month concerning the dual insurance position, I immediately notified Policy Expert by phone and followed up with an email confirming the situation. They have now replied, as shown below.:-

As you will see, they are suggesting that your team at Sainsbury's Home Insurance contact them directly with a view to receiving a 50% contribution towards the cost of the claim.

I'm very mindful of the time this is all taking — the claim has now been ongoing for nearly five months and reinstatement work has yet to begin. While it is, of course, entirely reasonable for insurers to discuss and agree matters between themselves, I do hope that this will not result in any further unnecessary or protracted delays.

If you have any further questions, please don't hesitate to let me know.

Kind regards,
Nicholas Scarr
