Dear Adam,

I just wanted to update you.

Although Andy Lyne has done his best to try and speak to the new loss adjuster, this has not proved possible, which is somewhat frustrating as he wants to facilitate a call between you and the loss adjusters directly so that your appointment can be properly discussed.

In the meantime, Davies Loss Adjustors have come back to say that they (insurers) do not wish to appoint you, on the basis that they did not feel you would be independent, and are therefore proposing instead to put forward their own Chartered Surveyor.

We believe that the complexity of this claim is such that your expertise in flood and reinstatement following floods is crucial. We are therefore pushing for you to continue to be involved with this claim irrespective of whether a Chartered Surveyor is appointed. Indeed, if a Chartered Surveyor is appointed, it must be an independent Chartered Surveyor and not one nominated by Davies Loss Adjustors.

Andy Lyne will be calling you this afternoon, as we have escalated the matter to the CEO of Qlaims Limited, Liz Latter. She is taking this forward with one of her contacts at Sainsbury's Home Insurance. The proposal being explored is whether insurers can agree a fixed package with you, potentially on a capped fee basis. Whether this will be acceptable to you is, of course, for you to decide, but this is something Liz Latter is keen to progress. I feel confident with Liz Latter's support a proposal of this nature would work.

Many thanks for your patience.

Best regards,

Nicholas
