Jason,

Thanks for your email and patience — apologies for the delay.

I'm working with Andy Lyne to secure final sign-off as quickly as possible. The loss adjusters have raised last-minute points that are critical to the integrity of the waterproofing system, and I cannot agree to those as they would severely undermine how the system is intended to work.

In the interests of progress, I have agreed — on an interim basis only and without prejudice — that we can temporarily park the question of the drain at the back door. However, the other points are so critical that I simply cannot concede them.

This is enormously frustrating. I had genuinely hoped we would be in a position to move forward by 5 January.

Please don't give up on us — we're very keen to move ahead with you. I'll come back to you by Tuesday with an update. I'm hoping we can start next week.

Best regards,
Nicholas
