Hi Andy,

Thanks for your email.

Yes, that's right. I will prepare a position paper on the clothes and send it you tomorrow so that you can have it to accompany your email advising him that the clothing and shoes will need to be disposed of.

Many thanks Andy.

Best regards,

Nicholas

Good afternoon Nick,

Many thanks for your email; I will forward it to Garrett Young now.

When we spoke, you mentioned that you would like all your clothing to be disposed of due to risks of airborne contamination. Would you like me to inform Garrett of this, or will you send a separate email with your thoughts on the contents?

Best regards

Andy Lyne

Dear Andy,

Without Prejudice – Conditional Acceptance to Commence Works

We refer to your email dated 30 January, setting out the proposal advanced by Garrett Young on behalf of insurers.

The proposal falls materially short of our requirements, and significant substantive issues remain outstanding, including reinstatement scope and adequacy, associated losses, and the contents claim, which remains unresolved.

Notwithstanding this, and strictly on a without prejudice basis, we are prepared to accept the proposal solely to allow reinstatement works to commence, as an interim and pragmatic step to avoid further delay.

This position is taken in light of the expert evidence obtained, together with our own extensive research and enquiries, all of which highlight a clear conflict with the position adopted by insurers. This includes, in particular, the proposed waterproofing measures, which are advised to be fated to fail, and the fact that the proposal does not address the issues raised in Dr Vanya Gant's letter, which are of critical importance given the health risks arising from sewage contamination and any delay or incomplete remediation.

For the avoidance of doubt, this acceptance:

is not acceptance of any cash settlement,

is not a full or final settlement of the claim,

does not amount to agreement as to scope, adequacy, liability, causation, or quantum, does not include the contents claim, and does not waive any rights.

All rights are expressly reserved.

In the interests of advancing matters as quickly as possible, I have asked Silks to attend and commence the first stage of the works at the earliest opportunity. Our intention is for works to begin on Monday 13 February, subject to receipt of the required deposit. I will forward the first invoice as soon as it is received. In parallel, I will liaise with Maclennans so that they are ready to mobilise at the earliest opportunity once Silks have completed their stage of the works.

Please confirm that insurers have authorised works to proceed on this basis.

Best regards,

Nicholas

Hi Andy,

Please pass on the below to Mr Scarr.

Dear Mr Scarr,

We have been reviewing the costs and works with insurers and agreed to the below.

You will note that the cost for the pumps and battery backup has been removed. The reason for this is that these are considered betterment given that pumps did not exist prior.

It should be noted that we have agreed that there was a form of damp proofing in the walls which is why we have agreed for the replacement of this material and confirm that this approach that has been agreed is far superior then what was previously in place.

We have agreed to the trenching within the property as this is part of the Cementous coatings works that are being undertaken.

We are also not agreeing to the ACO drains as these too would be considered betterment and which you have withdrawn these costs.

The above is insurers final decision regarding the reinstatement.
