Andy,

I have also chased Bio Response and Adam.

To my mind it tells you everything you need to know about Bio Responses professionalism. Activity logs should be a click away and they are no doubt having to construct them in a professional way. How else does one account for a 10 day delay.

As for Darren's lack of prompt response to my email, I can understand why Darren is more cautious because he seems terrified of saying anything that upsets insurers. Although given I believe it was a faithful representation of what was discussed it does highlight the continual challenge of getting a clear definitive - in writing response from Bio Response that delineates their position; rather than one that gets lost in translation. The truth is that what was said should not be controvertible. Inconvenient for insurers Yes, but when we are dealing with a very vulnerable client wishy washy ambiguity does not cut it. This has been my complaint all along that we are told one thing by Bio Response and what comes back from insurers is wholly different.

I am disappointed that Adam's report did not arrive earlier, but I am aware he is in the middle of some major court cases. If we end up suing insurers as well as Southern Water his expertise is what we need.

I am confident Adam will get this report (at least in draft form) to us in the next 72 hours.

Best regards,

Nicholas

Morning Nick,

I spoke to both Adam and Darren yesterday to chase their reports.

Darren has advised that he needs longer to review your email and is planning to respond today.

Adam appears to be struggling with his reports. He has advised that your report is a priority and to manage expectations, he expects the report to be available at the end of this week or over the weekend.

Adam will send his draft report for your review before releasing it.

Best regards

Andy Lyne
