Andy, following our conversation this evening I am growing increasingly concerned about my wife's condition. Louisa was signed off by the doctor for 3 weeks due to a mental health crisis and this continued inaction by the insurers is putting an intolerable strain on her.

I want to to email to Lizzy or the head of claims at Sainsbury's unless we can get a decision tomorrow. I would be grateful if we could have the name and email address of the head of claims at Sainsbury's.

Here is a draft of my email.

Thanks Andy.

Nicholas

Dear Lizzy,

I'm writing to you directly out of deep frustration and growing distress regarding our unresolved insurance claim following the sewage flood at our home — reported over five weeks ago. Despite the seriousness of this situation, we are still awaiting claim validation, and no meaningful progress has been made.

Our house remains in a hazardous condition, with untreated sewage still beneath the floorboards six weeks later. The lack of remediation is unacceptable and poses an ongoing health risk to our family.

More urgently, this delay is having a devastating impact on my wife, Louisa Scarr, who is now suffering from a severe mental health crisis as a result of the prolonged disruption, stress, and uncertainty. I have attached a doctor's certificate confirming her condition. This has made her position at home impossible, and the emotional toll on both of us is worsening by the day.

We have had to spend thousands of pounds on alternative accommodation and are facing a growing list of immediate, out-of-pocket expenses — with no financial support or communication from the insurer. The repeated failure to return calls and the complete lack of visible action have left us feeling abandoned.

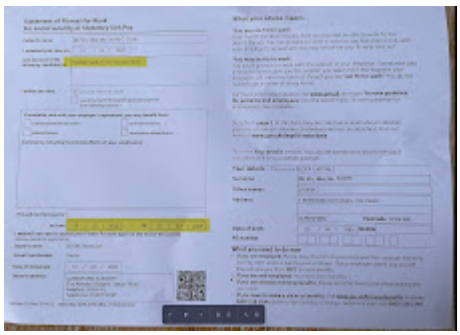

I must ask — in the strongest possible terms — for this claim to be expedited without further delay. We need written confirmation that the claim has been validated, a clear plan for the clean-up and restoration of the property, and immediate reimbursement for the costs we've incurred.

This situation is now beyond difficult. I urge you to escalate this and get things moving. I would appreciate a written response within 48 hours outlining the next steps.

I look forward to hearing from you shortly.

Nicholas
